INTERNAL TAXATION.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The house committee of the whole devoted the entire day yesterday to a general debate on the bill to reduce internal revenue taxation. More than a dozen speeches were made by as many members. Little general interest was manifested, most members having already made up their minds how they would vote on the different propositions involved in the bill, and other propositions which it is proposed to add. Page, of California, chairman of the commerce committee, made a blazing speech against any reduction whatever in internal revenue taxation. Page believes in a full national purse, and declares that in resisting a reduction of taxation he gives voice to the sentiment of the people whom he represents. He went further, and declared that in making an effort to reduce internal taxation, the republican party was going back on its record. This brought Kelley to his feet, and he read a resolution adopted by the Forty-first congress with only six negative votes, the house declaring that internal revenue taxes were levied solely as a war measure, and that when the expenses growing out of the war had been so far reduced as to justify it, internal taxes should be abolished. The forty-second congress, Judge Kelley said, had passed a similar resolution through the house with only twenty-five negatives. This congress was republican by a majority of three fourths. Page declared all this made no difference, and when those resolutions were adopted congressmen had no idea how great would be the burdens imposed by the war. No one foresaw a pension list of one hundred millions would be created, and Mr. Page might have added that no one foresaw a one hundred million river and harbor bill in those days.

A democratic caucus last night on the question of party action on the internal revenue bill, was of no practical benefit. There were apparently too many different opinions in the democratic ranks. A fight may be made to secure the adoption of certain amendments to the bill, so as to make campaign material, but the supporters will secure a large number of democratic votes, enough to pass it by a good majority.

ANTAGONISTIC TO AXTELL.

NEW YORK, June 23.—The Sun's Washington special says the nomination of Axtell for chief justice of New Mexico has met with opposition in the senate. His record ought to be sufficient cause for his rejection by the senate. The senators have been informed that the nomination has aroused the opposition of the best citizens of the territory, who had breathed a sigh of relief when Prince resigned, but they now look with apprehension on the nomination of a man whom they believe to be more unfit for the place than Prince.

INDIAN SOLDIERS.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The commissioner of Indian affairs will to-day send a communication to the secretary of the interior with regard to the matter of enlistment of Indians as soldiers in the army, in which he will recommend the war department be requested to enlist Indians, but not to enlist them for a shorter term of service than four years, or for such length of time as white men are enlisted.

CHINESE COMPLAINT.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The Chinese consul at San Francisco has written a letter to the national board of health, complaining that certain Chinese emigrants affected with small-pox have been detained on board a vessel now in the harbor of San Francisco, and that local authorities wouldn't allow them to land. The national board of health informed the consul that measures will be taken to thoroughly investigate the matter. It is understood that the board has decided to assume charge of the quarantine at that point, if it should be found necessary in furtherance of their plans.

DORSEY'S LAND SUITS.

NEW YORK, June 23.—The Mail and Express has the following Washington special: Senator Dorsey says that for the past three months he has had some of the best lawyers in New York to enter suits against a large number of newspapers, some for criminal libel and others in civil suits. He says damages amounting altogether to over one hundred thousand dollars will be asked in each case alone. He says the suits will soon be ready.

GUITEAU'S RESPITE.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The cabinet meeting to-day was attended by all the members. The session was short and was principally occupied by the consideration of applications for respite in the case of Guiteau. It was decided to have a special meeting at 6 o'clock this evening to finally consider the case. People who are in the city actively interesting themselves in endeavoring to procure a respite for Guiteau, expressed a desire to appear before the attorney general, to whom the papers and petitions laid before the president yesterday were referred, and make further argument in the case. The attorney general has refused to see them for this purpose, but has indicated that if they had any additional argument to submit they could put them in writing and he would consider such papers with the others. Dr. Beard is preparing a paper which he will send to the attorney general. Counsel for Guiteau had an interview with the president this afternoon and made a formal application for respite till he shall have an opportunity of bringing up the question of jurisdiction before the district court at the next term, which opens October 1st.

SECTIONS ENCOURAGEMENT.

CHICAGO, June 23.—A Washington special says: Republicans are much encouraged by reports from the south. Ex-Senator Bruce says the prospects are good for returning four republicans out of seven members of the house from Mississippi, and democrats exhibit much alarm regarding Virginia, admitting the superiority of the republican campaign movement. The split in the democratic ranks in Tennessee leads to the belief that half the delegation of the state will be republican.

HOUSE PROCEEDINGS.

Kasson from the committee on ways and means reported back a bill amending section 2933 revised statutes, that duties paid on sugar shall be assessed on quantity delivered from instead of quantity entered in bonded warehouses. Referred to the committee of the whole.

The house then went in committee and resumed consideration of the bill to reduce internal taxation, it being agreed that general debate thereon should close at 3 o'clock, at which hour eulogies on the life and character of the late Thomas Allen, of Missouri, will be delivered.

Kasson, of Iowa, explained the bill and reason in committee for recommending its passage.

Wilson, of West Virginia, spoke in support of two amendments which he proposed to offer, one striking out the clause abolishing tax on bank capital, the other forbidding national banks to charge or receive any interest discount or exchange exceeding six per cent. per annum.

Willis, of Kentucky, argued in favor of the proposed amendment providing alcohol and other spirits to be used in industrial pursuits shall be free of tax.

Hewitt, of New York, in discussing the bill, referred to the large number of workmen refusing to work, and considered the causes of the strikes now in progress. The general demand was for an increase of wages, and the ground on which the demand was placed was that the workman found himself unable to support himself and family with the wages now received. This grievance was well founded. The rise in prices of necessaries of life last year had been so great that the working people had found they were being reduced from a condition of comparative comfort to one of comparative want. Employers were unable concede it. They would be glad to pay higher wages if they were able. They refused because concession would simply destroy their capital. Relief must come from some quarter. If congress could show there was a heavy hand like the hand of a bandit taking out of the earnings of the laborer and capital unnecessary contributions, it it could find that such levy was made on the products of industry and that the levy was unnecessary then so far as it had power it could proceed with speed. It should go on an express train of legislation in order to remove the evils which were sapping the very roots of the comfort and peace of the people. A demand for reduction in exaction had been made; it must be heeded. It would be an issue in the fall elections. He appealed to the gentlemen on the other side to reduce expenditures and take the load of taxation off the overburdened energies of the working people.

Holman, of Indiana, McMillin, of Tennessee and others opposed the bill in its present form as being a measure for the relief of the banker, but containing no adequate relief for the working man.

The committee rose and eulogies were delivered upon the life and character of Thomas Allen, of Missouri, by Robinson, of Massachusetts, Hewitt, of New York, and Hatch and Frost, of Missouri.

Adjourned.

SENATE PROCEEDINGS.

Frye's rule to allow the president pro tem. to designate a senator in his place when absent, was referred with amendments to the committee on rules.

The house bill to accept and ratify an agreement with the Shoshone and Bannock Indians for the sale of a portion of their reservation in Idaho required for the Utah & Northern railway, and to make the necessary appropriation for carrying out the same passed.

The senate bill creating the Oregon Short Line Railroad company in Utah, Idaho and Wyoming territory and for other purposes, passed. Yeas, 30; nays, 3.

The house bill to establish uniform system of bankruptcy, came up, and after discussion was laid aside.

The senate bill for relief of settlers and purchasers of public lands in Nebraska and Kansas, passed.

House resolutions commemorative of Representative Allen, of Missouri, were received and after impressive remarks upon his life and services by Cockrell, Lawes, Brown and Vest, the usual resolutions were adopted.

Adjourned till Monday.

State News.

DURANGO, June 23. Geo. N. Woods, who shot and killed M. G. Buchanan on May 12th, was hanged at 10:55 a. m., to-day. The execution was public and witnessed by a large crowd.

GREELEY, June 22.—Quite a severe hail storm passed through the southern part of town last night, doing considerable damage to cherries and other small fruits. Mr. W. H. Forrest, below Greeley, some three miles, is said to have sustained serious injury to his farm crops.

PUEBLO, June 22.—It is stated upon reliable authority that the Denver & New Orleans railway, to-day, consummated the purchase of sixteen acres of land at the intersection of the Santa Fe avenue, Pueblo, and B street, South Pueblo. The price paid cannot be learned, but a good round figure was paid. The uses to which the land is to be applied are as inscrutable as the ways of providence.

DENVER, June 23.—The citizens of Ponchs Springs will celebrate the glorious Fourth by a basket picnic and a barbecue. Mr. J. P. True has given the use of the beautiful picnic grounds near the town.

Fish Commissioner Sisty has made an unqualified success of the state fish hatchery. Over 275,000 spawn have been placed in Colorado waters so far during the present summer.

A Leadville special of the 22d says a married woman named Sallie Jackson attempted suicide by shooting to-night, but the bullet missed its mark and came near killing a man a few feet distant. She attributes the act to despondency, brought on by the ill treatment of her husband, a gambler, to whom she has been married only three weeks.

The demurrer of the Union Pacific road to the petition of the stockholders of the Boulder Valley road, was overruled by Judge McCrary, of Denver. The petition was sustained. The Boulder Valley stockholders allege that when the Union Pacific leased the road it guaranteed interest on the bonds but failed to pay, for which reason the road was sold, and the stockholders lost $550,000.

Indian Outbreak.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., June 23.—A Fort Stanton special says the Mescalero Indians have broken out. The Indian police have killed some of the prisoners who tried to escape from Fort Union. Motezela, the war chief, is on the agents' side and fighting the Indians. Troops are going to the spot immediately. Much stock and cattle were killed by the Indians. One of the agents was fired on and wounded twice.

THE SECOND BLOW.

Further Particulars of the Damage at Independence Melodramatic Again Suffers.

MORE MISFORTUNE.

DES MOINES, June 23.—Another terrible rain and wind storm passed over Iowa this afternoon. The citizens of the recent desolated town of Malcolm were exposed to the elements through damaged and roofless buildings for three hours, in a pitiless storm, which damaged goods rescued from Saturday's storm, to an enormous amount. At Pleasant Vale, Union county, the residence of P. Lyon was badly twisted, and the props placed against it on the other side were driven through the wall. It is thought the damage northeast of here was more severe.

DUBUQUE, June 23.—Word was received here from Independence through passengers on the train, of great damage done by a storm. The buildings of nearly all the business houses were unroofed, the wires are all down, the depot of the Burlington & Cedar Rapids a wreck. The blow came before the performance of Sells' circus began; so no life was lost. Many horses were killed by the flying timbers, and two men whose names are unknown.

RELIEF MEASURES.

CHICAGO, June 23. Committees were appointed to-day to solicit subscriptions for the sufferers by the Iowa cyclone. The board of trade committee this afternoon raised about $35,000.

DUBUQUE, Ia., June 23.—Independence is entirely cut off from telegraph in all directions. We will not be able to hear fully from there until night. From eight to ten stores were unroofed and stocks are a total loss. The insane asylum was badly damaged. Wind mills were blown away and several houses blown to pieces. Men were killed outright. Damage to property is very large. Sells Bros.' circus canvass was blown to atoms. Their loss will be large. The performance was over thirty minutes before the storm. The storm struck the town at 4:30 p. m.

A St. Louis Embezzlement.

ST. LOUIS, June 23. O. Owen, receiving teller of the Third National bank of St. Louis, has been arrested on the charge of embezzling $150,000 of the funds of the bank. Very little is known of the affair at this writing, but it is said Owen's operations have extended over a period of several years, and have been very carefully concealed. Thomas E. Tutt, president of the bank, thinks the actual embezzlement will amount to about $75,000, but this cannot be definitely ascertained till the books are examined. Owen says he thinks some $50,000 can be accounted for by errors in the books; $800 were found on Owen's person.

The bank is not embarrassed by the embezzlement of its teller, Owens, which is now believed will exceed $100,000. It is said he had been speculating in options and stocks.

Sureties on the teller's bond are good for $30,000, and Owens has some property; so the bank will lose only a small sum. Owens confesses that his defalcations have extended over two years.

Mining Market.

NEW YORK, June 23.—Mining stocks fairly active and steady. Robinson sold at 98 to 94, closing at 87. State Lines 2 and 3, 28 to 31. Oriental and Miller, 30 to 38. Green Mountain declined to 2.40. Stormont advanced to 65. Sales, 168,150 shares.

FEDLAY, Ills., June 23. Terrible storms visited this place last night. Three men named Chas. G. Sensny, of Fort Wayne, Ind., John G. Wilson and Chas. G. Holmes, were instantly killed by lightning.

EGYPTIAN AFFAIRS.

Views of the Powers on the Course to be Pursued.

LONDON, June 23.—The official correspondence relative to the Egyptian question, is published. It shows Bismarck is favorable to intervention by the sultan, as sovereign of Egypt, but would not oppose any other proposals sanctioned by concert of the powers.

On the 22d of February DeFreycinet expressed to the British ambassador at Paris a strong objection to any intervention by the porte, considering the object of the powers to be to render forcible intervention unnecessary. The correspondence shows France first proposed sending iron-clads to Egypt.

An Alexandria correspondent telegraphs he is informed on the best authority, if France and England interfere actively in Egyptian affairs, Arabi Bey Pasha will blow up the Suez canal, to cut off the way to Cairo, and oppose the landing of European troops in Alexandria. If beaten, he will retire to the desert, where he is promised the support of 20,000 Bedouins. The partizans of Prince Hall, the Egyptian minister, are prepared to sanction the above on patriotic grounds.

The reports of difference in the cabinet on the Egyptian question are without the shadow of foundation.

ALEXANDRIA, June 23.—Dervisch Pasha has a telegram from the sultan, instructing him to use his efforts to induce Arabi Pasha to proceed to Constantinople before the first sitting of the conference, and stating the sultan is satisfied with the attitude of Arabi Pasha. It is believed Arabi will decline to go to Constantinople. The sultan has also telegraphed the khedive expressing satisfaction at his course, and promising to strengthen his authority.

LONDON, June 23.—In the commons Gladstone said all representatives of powers at Constantinople except the Austrian representative had received instructions for their guidance at the conference. He had no reason to think Austria objected to join the conference. The whole subject of the central government and neutralization of the Suez canal was outside the scope of the conference.

Lord Granville, minister of foreign affairs, in a speech suggested that England, France and Turkey each send a general to Egypt to restore discipline in the army. France objected to the plan as dilatory and possibly leading to sending Turkish troops on the sultan's own authority. On the second of May the French government suggested the sending of the fleets and agreed if they failed to effect the desired object that calling in of Turkish troops by France and England would be the least objectionable form of armed intervention.

PORTSMOUTH, June 23.—A tank vessel capable of distilling 100 tons of water hourly has sailed for the nile. It is supposed that it is sent as a precaution against a possibility of supplies for the Suez canal stations being interrupted.

ALEXANDRIA, June 23.—The president of the council has written the Italian consul inviting him and his colleagues to appoint delegates or a commission of inquiry into the late riots, furnished with full powers in order to avoid constant references to their governments. English and French consuls-general oppose any further inquiry at present.

CONKLING AND CORNELL.

Programme of the New York Leaders.

NEW YORK, June 23.—It is believed rumors of truce between Conkling and Cornell are founded on fact. Cornell made some concessions in order to secure re-election this fall, and Arthur has been an active agent in producing peace. The result of the conferences, as told by all parties, is a proposition to nominate Cornell for governor and Senator Lapham for lieutenant governor. If Lapham is elected he will resign his seat at the beginning of the second session of the forty-seventh congress and Cornell will appoint Conkling to fill the vacancy and this would seat him in the senate six or eight weeks at least before the assembly would meet to choose Lapham's successor. By uniting their forces friends of both the leaders say there is a fair chance the assembly could be selected in New York which by the double executive pressure, that at Washington and Albany, could be made to see a new light regarding Conkling which would consent to carry out the programme which the leaders are arranging.

Fastened to the Pigtail.

NEW YORK, June 23.—The Herald's editorial says: "There is at least one state in the union where the democrats have got something to hold on to. The state is California. There they have fastened themselves to the pigtail of the Chinese, which they expect will drag them into power. The democrats, curious to say, are always in somebody's wool. They had their hands in the kinky curls of the poor negro for a quarter of a century, until they were compelled to let go. They will fare no better with the Chinese, and modern democracy is unhappy unless it is on the back of a supposed inferior race, which, in the end, always contrives to get on top."

Rosecrans not Wanted.

CHICAGO, June 23.—The Inter-Ocean says General John M. Palmer, who commanded a division under Rosecrans at Stone river and Chickamauga, defends Garfield against Rosecrans and expresses the opinion that the latter is seeking publicity of the subject to pave his way to a presidential nomination. He closes his argument with a rather remarkable utterance: "I dare the democratic party of this country to nominate such a man. We want no grave-yard ghoul at the head of the democratic party in '84."

DEMOCRATIC PRINCIPLES.

Comments on the Chinese Platform of California.

NEW YORK, June 23.—The Tribune's editorial contains the following: The democrats of California in convention assembled have emitted a platform which we commend to the whole party for national use. It reads as if it had been written by Dennis Kearney. The larger part is devoted to the Chinese, and upon that once promising issue the utterances are stirring enough to make the wildest Chinese hater in the country die with joy. The architects were southerners. California was a refuge which many southerners sought at the close of the war, where they all joined the democratic party and were at once given high places in its councils. They betray their antecedents in the platform by denouncing, who, under a humanitarian cloak, are endeavoring to thwart efforts in behalf of the white men in California. This is the first intimation we had that Chinamen were endangering the divine rights of white men to rule this country. Starting on this ancient democratic principle the platform warms at once to work. It denounces Chinese now in California as an "unmasked curse," appeals to the conscience of the country for deliverance and demands the democratic national convention shall declare for the doctrine of self-preservation and shall pledge the party in case it obtains power to remove every Mongolian from the country. We trust the word "remove" is not used in the Guiteau sense. We are not fast about it. The convention which adopted the declaration was in a red-hot condition. The national democracy will probably accept the suggestion and push the extermination plank into its platform. It would fit in admirably with the present collection of principles among which stand stuffed ballot boxes, polygamy, free rum, free trade, abolition of the national banks. There is really nothing new in the platform. The creature has been running as an "unmasked curse" for the past twenty-five years and has been treated as such by the people.

Bad Faith.

ANNIVERSARY

A large number of invited friends assembled at the Home for Friendless Children for the purpose of celebrating the first annual anniversary of the establishment of the institution. A literary programme had been provided for the occasion, and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

Dr. Horn, the chairman of the executive committee, opened the exercises with a few remarks. He said that one year ago that night the idea was conceived of forming a home for the friendless. At that time a meeting was held and the organization perfected.

At the conclusion of Dr. Horn's remarks, Miss Hancock, the matron of the Home, read the following history of the "Home:"

One year ago to-night a few persons had been invited to come together at the mayor's office to take into consideration the advisability of establishing an orphan asylum in this city. The evening was stormy and only eight persons were present,—three of whom remained but a short time.

The majority of those present were inclined to discourage the undertaking; thinking that such an institution was not called for, and that a hospital for the sick was what was needed.

The question was put to Judge Bentley, "Do you think that, under the circumstances, it is best to attempt now to build up an orphan asylum here?" The answer was, "Yes. It would have a small beginning, as everything of the kind usually does, but I think it would be well to do it."

That monosyllable "Yes" was the little seed from which our home has grown. It was decided then that a house be opened the 15th of July for the reception of inmates, and Mrs. Rice kindly offered her house south of town for the purpose, on condition it was unoccupied at that time. Judge Bentley engaged to secure another house for us if necessary. When the time arrived two houses were ready for us, viz: the one offered by Mrs. Rice and the one secured by Judge Bentley. The former was chosen and occupied until the 15th of March.

After this same time was spent in effecting an organization than was anticipated. Meetings were called, but attendance prevented by storms until on the 29th of July, when a meeting was called in the Y. M. C. A. rooms, and a committee appointed to take the matter into consideration, and report at the same place at 8 p. m., July 30th.

The committee met and reported a resolution favoring an organization, and a meeting of citizens was called on the 1st of August at half past three p. m. At this meeting the trustees were appointed.

One inmate an infant—was received the 3d of August, and this was the only one received that month. In September five were admitted; in October five; November one; December three; January two; February eight; March eight; April one; May six; June (at the present time) one; forty-one in all. These have come from different towns as follows: Denver fourteen; Colorado Springs nine; Silver Cliff four; Boulder three; Golden three; Pueblo three; Manitou one; Monument one; Leadville one; Cañon City one, and Ft. Collins one.

Some weeks since a woman of this state resolved to break away from the restraint of home life, and deserted her husband and children. Her husband, wishing to forget the trouble that had come upon him, resorted to intoxicating drink. He awoke from his drunken sleep to ask, "Where is my wife?" "Nothing has been heard from her," was the reply. "Where are my little boys? Are they safe?" "Yes, safe at the Home in Colorado Springs." The idea of strangers caring for the little ones whom his wife had deserted and he had neglected, touched his heart. He commenced work, and soon took the little ones under his own care.

He appeared very grateful for what we had done for him, and started off, leading the two children. He went a few steps, and then came back, saying, "At the time you took my boys I was totally unfit to care for them. Henceforth I will be what a father should be, for their sakes, and I must again express the gratitude I feel for the care they have received."

We have inquired after that father since, and the reply we received was, "He is still faithfully at work, and is supporting his children."

Our institution is only for the children, but we reach the parents through the children; and the man alluded to is not the only parent we know of who has been stimulated to a higher and better life than that parent had known before, by our work for their children.

Our little group is greatly diminished by being scattered in different homes. Nineteen have been removed by relatives or kind strangers, who have adopted them, one has gone to the better land and twenty-one are with us now.

Nothing excites our gratitude like seeing the little ones whom we have rescued from the worst influences and the most wretched surroundings in the good homes where we have been instrumental in placing them. We have had trials, it is true, but that was perhaps essential to the development of strength. The tree that is most exposed to winds and storms takes the deepest root.

Next came a song by the children, after which the "Irish Othello" was recited by Col. John Wanless. Miss Baker then read "Poor Little Joe," and Mrs. Col. Wanless recited "The Vagrant." After a song, in which all joined, Dr. Horn thanked all for the kind interest that had been manifested in the Home and the company dispersed.

LATER.—All Italian laborers of the West Shore and Buffalo railroad near here who demand wages due and increase of pay, headed by their leader, Frank Cave, have taken possession of tools, chains, locomotives, and have threatened the life of Contractor Scully or any who interfere till their demands are granted. They beat and drove away several Irish workmen. Sheriff Churchill, with a posse and a company of militia from Catskill are here to make arrests and clear the road.

Notice has been received to the effect that several of the states' ball clubs will be represented at the convention in this city to-night.

Mr. Hock, the superintendent of the gas works, has been confined to his bed for the past week with a severe attack of diphtheria.

Mr. and Mrs. I. B. Atwood, of New York city, who have been visiting Mr. Irving Howbert for the past week, left for Leadville yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Richards rejoice in the birth of a young daughter. Mr. Richards was yesterday performing the cigar act on the strength of it.

Work is being done about the licensing of dogs. Hundreds of the curs can be seen upon the streets every day without either collar or license checks.

We acknowledge the receipt of an invitation to attend the Fourth of July celebration at Pueblo. Elaborate arrangements have been made for the proper observance of the day.

At a meeting of the W. S. Jackson Hose company, held last night, it was concluded to send a team to Pueblo on July 4th to participate in the local tournament there. The boys are not in very good practice and they go more to be sociable than with the expectation of carrying off any prize.

Miss L. M. Von Finkelstein will to-morrow evening give a talk on Syria at the Presbyterian church. Miss Von Finkelstein has traveled extensively in the Holy Land and resided for years at Jerusalem, and we predict that what she may have to say will prove to be both entertaining and instructive.

A special train will be run over the Denver & New Orleans road from Denver to-day for the convenience of those who may wish to attend the game of ball in this city between the Denver Browns and Colorado Springs Reds. The train will arrive here about 12:30 and will not return until Sunday afternoon.

Attend the game of ball at the association grounds this afternoon, between the Denver Browns and the Colorado Springs Reds. The price of admission will be but 25 cents. Tickets for sale at Wm. Trafley's cigar store and at Eff & Howett's and Howbert Bros.' book stores. The game promises to be exceptionally close and interesting.

Miss Fannie Lair, a young lady who had three years experience in kindergarten work at St. Louis, under Miss Blow, has been engaged by Prof. H. L. Parker, to take charge of that branch of study at the opening of the fall term of his private school in September. Miss Lair is said to be in every way qualified for the work which she is to undertake.

One of the oldest and most popular hotels at Denver is the American house, and it justly merits the successful run it is having under the proprietorship of Mr. Charles H. Smith. Mr. Smith is one of the most accommodating of hosts, and those patronizing the American can always expect good treatment at his hands.

A strawberry and ice cream festival will be given this evening by the ladies of the M. E. church in the brick building on Tejon recently known as the Chicago store. The ladies say that they will positively have strawberries this time and abundance of them too. A general invitation is extended to the public to attend and get the first berries of the season.

A letter was yesterday received from the foreman of the L. B. Armin Hose company at Pueblo, inviting the Colorado Springs Fire department to participate in the celebration of independence day at Pueblo. A local tournament, governed by the Colorado state rules, will take place. There will be a wet test, first prize, $100; second prize, $25, and a straightaway for a prize of $25.

A special Pullman car attached to the south bound express yesterday morning, contained a party consisting of H. J. Jewett, president of the New York, Lake Erie and Western railroad, his daughter, Miss Ellen Jewett, son, George M. Jewett, and three young lady friends of the family. The party was destined for Marysville, Alma and Leadville, at which points Mr Jewett is quite extensively interested in mining properties. They will return in a few days and make a brief sojourn at Manitou. President Jewett is one of the most remarkable men in the country, and is perhaps the greatest railroad man. He was born in St. Clairsville, Belmont county, Ohio, about 1820. He was a poor boy, but possessed a remarkable ability and great integrity. He studied law, and by his earnest work and well-known honesty he acquired a large fortune, and is now said to be worth about $8,000,000. In 1851-5 he began his railroad career as president of the Central Ohio railroad. He was sent to congress in 1875 from the Columbus district, but in 1874 resigned to accept the presidency of the Erie, at the greatest salary ever paid to a railroad man, $40,000 per annum.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Decision of the Cabinet in Guiteau's Case Announced.

They Will not Interfere with the Execution.

GUITEAU'S CASE.

WASHINGTON, June 23. Attorney-General Brewster informed your correspondent to-night that no decision had been reached by the cabinet, but that all papers were in his hands, and he would render a final decision possibly at another cabinet meeting to-morrow. What the personal opinion of the attorney-general is as regards the application for respite, he would not say, but the impression is very strong that after a decorous delay of two or three days, the petitioners will be informed that the execution must take place on the day fixed by the court. It seems a trifle strange that the medical men who are so profoundly convinced of Guiteau's insanity did not take steps to secure authority to make a scientific examination of the assassin before the week fixed for his execution arrived. Many of the doctors figuring on the petition asking for a stay in the execution of the sentence might have testified for the defense during the trial. After months spent in patiently listening to the testimony bearing on the question of the prisoner's mental condition, the jury decided when he fired the fatal shot he knew that what he was doing was contrary to the law, and if his mind was unbalanced it was not to a degree that made him insane and irresponsible. The medical cranks attempted to make an argument before the attorney-general, but were directed to submit in writing their reasons for asking a respite for the assassin.

Charles Reed, Guiteau's counsel, saw the president to-day and urged that the assassin should be respited until October next. Then he could make the full bench of the supreme court grant a writ of habeas corpus. Two of the justices have already denied Reed's application on well-deemed principles of criminal jurisprudence, but he is fighting gamely and aimlessly to the end.

The Washington Post states that the cabinet advised against interfering in the sentence of Guiteau, the conclusion reached being that the issue of insanity had been as carefully investigated at the trial as would be possible at this date.

In the cabinet to-day was considered the matter of a respite for Guiteau, and this evening it had a special session on the subject. At the afternoon session Attorney General Brewster submitted his opinion of the petition for a reprieve. After a conference lasting an hour and a quarter, a decision was reached and the attorney general was instructed to reduce the same to writing, preparatory to its public announcement. It was decided not to make public the purpose of the decision in advance of the formal announcement through the attorney general to-morrow. Every member of the cabinet was visited this evening, but all declined to intimate what the decision will be. Various rumors are current, some to the effect that the cabinet had unanimously advised against any exercise of executive clemency.

Rumor attributed to Judge Gray, of the supreme court, the opinion that Guiteau was insane, which opinion had influenced the cabinet to advise a reprieve, and still another report, which was accepted by many, was to the effect that the attorney general had submitted an opinion adverse to Guiteau, but that the cabinet decided against it, and advised a reprieve for two weeks, to allow time for a commission of distinguished experts to pass opinion upon the mental condition of Guiteau. Whatever decision was arrived at by the cabinet, no one outside the president and his advisers seem to know. Guiteau's counsel used every endeavor to learn the decision, but without success. This evening he stated that the only grain of comfort he had received was from a member of the cabinet, who said to him "I cannot tell you whether the decision is for you or against you. I can only say while there is life there is hope."

The president is deeply moved, and expressed great anxiety to do what is right in the matter. The fact that he left the city this evening upon a pleasure trip, and his cheerful demeanor just prior to leaving, leads to the belief that he is satisfied with his decision whatever it may be, and that he received the support of his cabinet advisers, although it is utterly impossible to forward other than conjecture this evening. It is generally believed that a short reprieve will be granted Guiteau, to allow time for a commission of disinterested experts to pass upon his mental condition.

At a late hour to-night, Guiteau's counsel telegraphed President Arthur: "In the name of justice and humanity, if your decision is adverse to my client, do not permit it to be promulgated until I can get a hearing before the cabinet."

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The cabinet has decided not to interfere with the sentence of Guiteau, and the attorney general this morning instructed the marshal of the district and warden of the jail to keep the prisoner in strict confinement, and allow no one to see him, except his spiritual advisers, his physician and the officers of the jail.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The attorney general, to whom all appeals and petitions presented to the president bearing on the Guiteau case had been referred, submitted an elaborated report to the cabinet last evening, reviewing all points presented in favor of a respite and recommending it be not granted on the ground that the sanity of the prisoner had been fully established at the trial. The report is generally discussed and unanimously approved by the cabinet. All members were present and the understanding was reached that nothing should be disclosed as to the decision of the cabinet until after it should be made known to the prisoner. Rev. Mr. Hicks called upon the attorney general this morning by appointment and was informed that the cabinet had decided not to interfere with the execution of Guiteau.

FINAL ADJOURNMENT.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—In the house Kelley, chairman of the committee on ways and means, reported a concurrent resolution for final adjournment of congress on the tenth of July, which was adopted.

A HITCH WITH MEXICO.

CHICAGO, June 24.—A Washington special says: There is another hitch with the Mexican treaty which was to be sent to the senate three weeks ago, providing re-establishment of a commission. The evidence upon which the two principal awards were made, amounting to some $120,000, is simply a mass of perjury. Convinced that this was true, the secretary made an arrangement and drew up a treaty signed, sealed and delivered by one of them to the Mexican minister to be sent for ratification by his government. The first that the beneficiaries of the fraud knew about it was they could not get the money. When they wanted to draw an instalment payment had been stopped by order of Frelinghuysen. They then begged to be allowed to make an argument on the case before the treaty was sent to the senate, although one copy of the document had been transmitted to Mexico. It was supposed as a matter of course that the Mexican senate would ratify the treaty, because it was to stop the fraudulent payment of their money under the award. Now, however, the hitch comes from the action of Mexico. That government demands that not only shall the treaty provide for the reopening of the case, but the money paid out to this claim shall be returned. It amounts to about $500,000. There seems no doubt the cases were fraudulent, but this government does not want to bear the responsibility. The money was received from Mexico and distributed, but it is contended the fact of perjury and fraud is no more chargable to one government than the other, the claims commission being a joint affair, and that we are making ample concession by agreeing to have it set aside and a new commission established.

REMAINS OF THE JEANNETTE CREW.

WASHINGTON, June 24. Lieut. Danenhower had an interview with Secretary Chandler to-day with reference to having the remains of the Jeannette crew found by Engineer Melville transported to this country for proper interment in places selected by their families. The secretary referred the matter to a special commission consisting of Captain Walker, Captain English and Surgeon General Wales, who will report upon the expediency of applying to congress for assistance in this matter.

PREPARING FOR THE EXECUTION.

WASHINGTON, June 24. The windows on the east side of the south wing of the jail, in which Guiteau's cell is located, will be curtained to shut out the light. This morning the rope which is to be used in the execution was put up for the occasion. It is a fine piece of manilla, originally seven eighths in size, which has been stretched until it is now but three fourths in size and is forty-six feet long. After having been laid out the ends were firmly bound with twine and the knot tied at the same time. The death warrant has been prepared by the deputy clerk of the court and will be signed Monday and sent to Warden Crocker. The time designated for the execution is between the hours of noon and 2 p. m., June 30, 1882.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Deaf mutes of the United States propose placing a marble statue of President Garfield in the National deaf mute college in this city.

State News.

DENVER, June 24. An explosion of fire damp occurred in one of the shafts of the Canon City Coal Co., at Rockvale early yesterday morning seriously injuring one of the men and completely wrecking the ventilating machinery and immense iron fans. It will take several days to repair the damage.

A distressing case of drowning happened at a bridge in the Grand Canon yesterday, at 10 o'clock, the victim being the only son, seventeen years old, of T. J. Dixon, one of the guards at the penitentiary. He went with two cousins recently arrived from the states to show them the canon. They wished to bathe at an eddy above the bridge. He did not but said he would go and sit under the bridge. Directly they saw him struggling in the rapid current, having lost his foothold on the rocks. They were unable to reach him in time to render any assistance, as in plunging over the rapids portions of his body only occasionally were seen ahead of them, and finally they lost all traces of him in the seething current. They followed on to town and sympathizing friends joined in the hopeless search, but no trace of the body has been found.

The bankrupt firm of Simpsons are now taking heart. The recent decision of the criminal cases in their favor has made them bold. They have begun to replevin the goods which were attached by the United States marshal and others. The City National bank has replevined the whisky and cigars which were stored in the warehouse of the Denver Transfer Co.

Denver & New Orleans Purchase.

PUEBLO, June 23.—The announcement of the fact that the Denver & New Orleans had purchased the depot grounds in South Pueblo and would abandon their East grounds, which appeared yesterday, created quite a ripple of excitement in business and railroad circles, the matter having been kept very secret. New developments were brought out to-day. The New Orleans have been given the right of way into South Pueblo, and the ground on which they propose to locate their depot is a five acre tract, fronting on Santa Fe avenue, Pueblo, on the south side of the river, which was donated to them, provided they construct a depot within one year, and machine-shop, a round-house, etc., within five years. Contiguous to the land they have purchased ten acres, for which $10,000 was paid. A right of way is granted through all of section 6, township 21, south range 64 west, in which purchase said land is located. Their depot will be located about eight blocks east of the Union depot, and rumor has it they will make an effort to build right into the Union depot.

THE THIRD TORNADO.

Report that Emmettsburg, Iowa, is Destroyed and Over one Hundred People Killed.

DES MOINES, June 24. A dispatch has just been received by the Register from Fort Dodge, which says the Wabash & St. Louis dispatcher says: The town of Emmettsburg, Iowa, county seat of Palo Alto county, was blown to pieces this morning by a tornado, and over one hundred people killed. The Illinois Central and Chicago & Northwestern trains are blown from the tracks. The Milwaukee & St. Louis road is wrecked by washouts north of Forest City, and there is a report that three or four more towns in the locality are blown to pieces. The wires north of here are down. It is impossible to get more news, but will work hard to get everything possible.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., June 24. A heavy storm and rain passed over the northern part of Iowa last night. Much damage to property is reported, but no lives lost as yet. At Patterson a number of buildings were moved from their foundations and some damage to crops from hail is reported. A freight car was blown from the track on the Sioux City and St. Paul railway. At Prosper the depot building, Catholic church, two barn warehouses and a number of other buildings are wrecked. At the same station eighteen freight cars were ditched. The violence of the storm caused a good deal of uneasiness at Lemars, but no serious damage is reported from there. The storm struck Spencer, on the line of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway, about 5 o'clock this morning.

CHICAGO, June 24.—The Des Moines agent of the associated press telegraphs as follows: We are not able as yet to get any more news of the reported disaster at Emmettsburg, as the wires are so badly down and Emmettsburg is naturally somewhat isolated.

The Egyptian Situation.

LONDON, June 24.—The official correspondence on the Egyptian question shows that Bismarck informed the German ambassador that he was opposed to joint English and French intervention in Egypt because he believed it would lead to disagreement and quarrels between France and England which might be said to be the result of his supposed policy. He would be glad to see it avoided.

A correspondent at Alexandria says: "Arabi Pasha informs me he will resist to the death every pretence on the part of the enemies of Egypt to interfere with her affairs. He says he cannot regard any settlement as satisfactory until the fleets have withdrawn. The report that he aimed at ruling Egypt without the khedive, he declared to be a base calumny."

It is said the conference at Constantinople had a long sitting Friday.

The United States steamer, Lancaster, has sailed from Malta to Alexandria.

ALEXANDRIA, June 24. Owing to the rumors of fresh calamities the exodus of Europeans has recommenced. Admiral Seymour has made arrangements for landing forces in the event of another riot. Eighty Americans left to-day in a vessel chartered by the captain of the United States steamer Galena.

LONDON, June 24.—The Chester, another large vessel, has been added to the Mediterranean. The admiralty now deem it desirable to guard the Suez canal by a number of small gunboats instead of by the two guard ships, as intended.

Crop Prospects.

ST. PAUL, June 24.—The weather for the past few days has been warm with heavy and frequent rains. Crop reports from all parts of the state indicate thus far that the wheat has not suffered from rain and is growing finely, gaining a strong stand and giving good promise of an extraordinary yield. Rains can hardly continue long, however, without unfavorable results in some low-lying regions. Few complaints are heard of too rank growth of weeds in the fields. Corn has taken a fresh start under the influence of warm weather. The outlook for corn is much less favorable than for wheat.

BASE BALL.

First Important Game for the Season of 1882.

Denver Browns Vanquished by the Colorado Springs Reds.

Organization of a State League and Election of Officers.

A Series of Twelve Games to be Played.

The first important game of ball for the season of 1882 was played on the association grounds in this city yesterday afternoon between the Denver Browns and Colorado Springs Reds in the presence of about six hundred spectators. With the exception of a strong wind from the south, which rendered it rather disagreeable for the players, the day was very favorable. During the half hour previous to the opening of the game the First Regiment Cavalry band rendered some fine music. Taking all in all the formal opening of the association grounds was a decidedly successful one. Long before the game was called every seat in the grand stand was occupied as were also all of the open seats.

At 2:54 the game was called by the umpire, Mr. W. R. Perry, with the Browns to bat. Ryan, the first to cover home plate, went out on a fly to Austin. Wilmot got first on an error of Stovell's on first base, but was put out while trying to steal second by Newman. McGrady retired on three strikes.

Traffley was first to wield the bat for the Reds and took first on a safe hit. McIntyre flied out to Clark on second. Rockwell secured his first by error of Ryan in left field, and Traffley went to second. Newman took first on called balls, went to second on wild throws, while Rockwell and Traffley came home. Donnelly retired on three strikes and Newman was caught trying to steal third. Score, 2 to 0.

SECOND INNING.

Clark went out on first. Hayes followed and on an error of Newman's got first, and subsequently stole second. Dreyfoos took first on a base hit and Hayes went to third. Davis knocked out, as did also Madden, leaving Dreyfoos and Hayes on bases.

Austin went out to short stop to first. Lewis sent a dandy three bagger to center field but got home on a fumble of Dreyfoos amid cheers. Stovell went out on a foul tip to Hayes and Thornell struck out. Score Browns 0; Reds 3.

THIRD INNING.

Bushong swung the willow three times and retired. Ryan tipped a light one to short stop and was captured on first. Wilmot secured second on a good hit, but McGrady fouled out to Traffley and left him there.

Traffley knocked a light one to Davis and was out on first. McIntyre took first on error of Ryan and continued to second on a wild throw of same. Rockwell fouled out to Hayes. Newman took first on called balls and Donnelly did likewise. Austin struck out leaving McIntyre, Newman and Donnelly on bases. Score unchanged.

FOURTH INNING.

Clark made a safe hit and went to first. Hayes was captured on first and Clark took second; Dreyfoos batted a light one to short stop which put him out at first. Davis made a good two base hit bringing in Clark and making the first score for the Browns in the game. Madden retired on three strikes.

Lewis pounded the air three times in succession and took his seat. Stovell got first on a safe hit and stole second. Thornell got his first on called balls. Traffley followed, making the prettiest hit of the game, scoring both Thornell and Stovell and making a home run himself. McIntyre got first on a base hit. Rockwell secured first by error of Davis. Newman struck out and Donnelly did likewise on a foul bound to left, leaving Rockwell and McIntyre on bases. Score, Browns, 1; Reds, 6.

FIFTH INNING.

Bushong flied out to McIntyre. Ryan sent a short one to Rockwell, and was put out at first. Wilmot followed suit.

Austin made a splendid hit and covered three bases. Lewis got first on error of Dreyfoos, and stole second. Stovell flied out to center field. Austin came in. Thornell batted a safe one to right field and took second, bringing in Lewis. Game was here called on account of an accident which happened to Clark, the second baseman of the Browns. In attempting to head off Thornell, who was running to second, he fell, wrenching his ankle badly. He was removed from the field and a change was made in the position of the players. Williamson went to right, Madden took the position of catcher and Hayes played on second. Traffley was first to bat, and by a safe hit brought in Thornell and took first. He was afterward put out while trying to steal third. McIntyre went out on a foul fly, thus terminating the inning. Score, Browns, 1; Reds, 9.

SIXTH INNING.

McGrady struck out to pitcher. Williamson made base hit and took first. Hay also made safe hit, sending Williamson to second. Dreyfoos got first, but forced Williamson out at third. Davis sent a nice one to right field, bringing in Hayes and Dreyfoos. Madden went to first on safe hit, as did also Bushong, the latter scoring Davis. Ryan batted out to short stop, leaving Bushong on second.

Rockwell took first on safe hit. Newman retired on three strikes. Donnelly went to first, but forced Rockwell out at second. Austin was put out on first, leaving Donnelly on base. Score, Browns, 4; Reds, 9.

SEVENTH INNING.

Up to the beginning of the sixth inning the result of the game had been very unsatisfactory for the visitors, but their making three runs after two men had been put out gave them some encouragement and they went to the bat in the seventh inning with a determination to increase their score. Wilmot took first on an error of Donnelly's. McGrady struck out and Williamson did likewise on a short fly to the pitcher. Hayes made a splendid two base hit and brought in Wilmot. Dreyfoos went to first on a safe hit. Davis sent a high one to right and brought in Hayes and Dreyfoos. Madden batted a short one to short and forced Davis out on second.

Lewis took first on base hit and went to second on error of the right fielder. Stovell got first on safe hit, and Lewis was put out trying to steal home. Thornell went out by a high one to short stop. Traffley, as usual, batted a safe one, secured his first and brought in Stovell. McIntyre made a base hit and Traffley took second. Rockwell batted out to center, leaving McIntyre and Traffley on bases. Score, Browns, 7; Reds, 10.

EIGHTH INNING.

Bushong got his first on an error of McIntyre, and Ryan followed on an error of Austin. Wilmot knocked a safe one to right, bringing in Bushong, but Ryan was put out at home. McGrady went out at first, as did also Williamson.

Newman made a strong hit and got his first base, but was caught napping by the pitcher. Donnelly went out on foul to catcher. Austin took first on called balls, but was put out on trying to make second. Score, Browns, 8; Reds, 10.

NINTH INNING.

Things now began to look rather close and the spectators became somewhat excited. Hayes started out with a very safe hit, making first, but was put out trying to steal second. Dreyfoos struck out and Davis sent a light one to Rockwell and was put out at first, thus closing the game.

SHORT STOPS.

The umpiring of W. R. Perry gave very general satisfaction. He did not render a single decision which gave cause for complaint on either side. If anything he discriminated against his own club.

Traffley sustained his reputation as the best catcher west of the Mississippi. He did not have a single error recorded against him and only allowed one ball to pass him during the entire game. His capturing of a difficult foul in the third inning was loudly cheered.

Hayes is by big odds the best general player in the Denver nine. He has had a good record as a ball player in Colorado for five years or more.

McIntyre played shortstop with his usual energy and had only one error placed against him.

The best batting in the game was done by Traffley of the Reds and Hayes of the Browns.

Not until the sixth inning did the Browns get on to Rockwell's pitching and then they batted him unmercifully.

Where the Browns are deficient is in their running. They missed making first several times by being too slow.

Capt. J. T. Smith, the manager of the Browns, sat in the shade of the grand stand and manifested the utmost interest in the game throughout.

Williamson did not come as a substitute neither did he pretend to be a ball player, but he hit the first ball "Rock" pitched him and gave the Browns a starter in the sixth inning.

On account of the strong wind it was difficult for the fielders to gauge the fly balls.

Harry P. Kelly and N. H. Thorn of the Leadville Blues occupied seats in the grand stand and watched the game closely. Their verdict at the conclusion was that the Blues could get away with either nine.

Rockwell labored under a disadvantage in his pitching on account of the wind.

Bushong's slow curves rather bothered the boys. They had better practice up on them a little before they play the Browns again.

Davis of the Browns is an excellent short stop, but his batting was nothing extraordinary.

Captain Tuttle did all in his power to make the opening of the grounds a success, and saw that the visitors were properly entertained.

ORGANIZATION OF THE LEAGUE.

In the evening in accordance with the call published in the state papers, representatives of the various clubs in the state met in Judge Harrison's office for the purpose of perfecting a state association and arranging for a series of games for a championship pennant.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. J. E. McIntyre. Captain J. F. Smith, of Denver, was elected temporary chairman, and Captain W. B. Tuttle, secretary, to act in the absence of W. R. Thornell, the duly elected delegate. It was found that the following delegates were entitled to seats in the convention:

Colorado Springs Reds, J. E. McIntyre, W. R. Thornell.

Leadville Blues—N. H. Thorn, Harry P. Kelly.

Denver Browns—Captain J. T. Smith, A. L. Dreyfoos.

It was expected that Fort Collins, Longmont and Boulder would be represented, as they had been notified of the meeting. A general discussion ensued as to what kind of an organization was needed. It was determined that only such clubs having enclosed grounds ought to be admitted to the league. The following articles were then adopted:

ARTICLE 1. The membership of the Colorado league for the season of 1882 shall include the Denver, Leadville and Colorado Springs associations, but this shall not in any way interfere with the playing of games with other clubs providing these games do not conflict with those in the pennant schedule.

ART. 2. The officers of the association shall consist of a president, secretary and treasurer and three directors; the president and secretary to act as ex-officio members of the board of control, and to be chosen from that body.

ART. 3. The board of directors, when the association is not in session, shall have all the powers that are lodged in that body for the purpose of making changes that are needed or desired, decide appeals or all protests.

ART. 4. The purchasing of a pennant for 1882 until otherwise ordered by the association in convention is lodged in the board of directors who shall arrange the cost of the same pro rata among the several associations.

After some considerable discussion it was decided to play a series of twelve games for the pennant, the time of playing these to be arranged for by the board of directors.

The following officers were elected to act for the ensuing year:

President—J. T. Smith, Denver.

Secretary—W. R. Thornell, Colorado Springs.

Directors—N. H. Thorn, Leadville; W. B. Tuttle, Colorado Springs; C. M. Jackson, Denver.

The first game of the series will be played in this city next Saturday between the Leadville Blues and Colorado Springs Reds; the second on the following Sunday at Denver between the Browns and Blues; and the third at Leadville on July 4th between the Blues and Reds.

Political Assessment.

NEW YORK, June 24. Geo. Wm. Curtis, editor of Harper's Weekly, having sent a circular to a large number of persons employed in the United States, warning them not to make contributions to a political fund, citing section 6, chapter 207 of the United States statutes, Jay A. Hubbell, chairman and treasurer of the republican national committee, challenged Mr. Curtis to join him in submitting the matter to the attorney general for his opinion. Mr. Curtis says he will lay the matter to the attention of the attorney general.

Curtis in replying through a reporter said the law was not quoted in the circular, reference only being made to it. If the law is misstated, continued Curtis, it is due to error of transcription and is a matter to be corrected. Whether a republican congress is an office holder is a question which neither I or Hubbell can decide. Any talk as to the soundness of the law question between Hubbell and myself would be fruitless. It is not for him or me to determine the matter but for opinion of counsel and decision of the court. We propose to bring the matter to the attention of the attorney-general and his opinion is of more importance than Hubbell's or mine. He may interpret the law one way and I may interpret it another way.

California Nominations.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 24. The congressional delegates of the fourth district nominated P. D. Tulley, of Gilroy, for congressman, without opposition. The third district nominated W. W. Foote, of Alameda, railroad commissioner of the district. The board of equalization nominated John Markley, of Stanislaus, for the second district, and William M. Crucher for member of the state board of equalization. The democratic convention nominated Mr. John Daggett lieutenant governor by acclamation.

General Rosecrans was renominated by acclamation for congress in the first district. Ex-City Surveyor W. P. Humphreys was nominated railroad commissioner of the second district.

Davitt Again.

NEW YORK, June 24.—Davitt said to a reporter to-day, "I intend to answer, once for all, the charges brought against me, and if after this they are again repeated I shall resign my position in the land league and return to Ireland." His speech last night was in Jersey City, where he refused all offers.

A Pennsylvania widower, some sixty years of age, and comfortably off in circumstances, has entered suit against a well preserved widow, but little younger, and with a pocket book of pathetic liability, for breach of promise of marriage The case is one in which the interest is by no means confined to the "pent up Utica" of the two parties to the suit, Every single soul and widower in the land is more or less directly interested in the result, for in it is involved a question of rights that has ever been considered one of the most precious of masculine prerogatives. Our widower, within sixty days after the death of the first, by no means silent, partner of his joys and sorrows, was led by the beautiful and touching impulses of his loving nature to offer the few remaining fragrants of his lacerated heart to a neighboring widow The latter, taken completely by surprise, on the purpose of gaining a moment's time, took off her spectacles, polished them up with her apron readjusted them upon her blushing nose and then looking over them with an expression of celestial benignity, gently suggested that the question be postponed until the weeds upon the grave of the first wife had been cut down by the rude blasts of at least one winter The ardent lover of course agreed to wait a year, for, thought he, did did not Jacob wait seven years for young Rachel, and they seemed but as days So he waited The sultry days of summer flew by almost unnoticed those of autumn seemed but little longer but, it must be confessed the cold days of winter were endured by one shivering widower with less fortitude At last however spring came With lamb-like agility the impatient lover skipped up the marble steps of the widow's snug mansion With as much confidence as a southern contestant submits his case to congress, he bounded into the presence of the dignified widow and again asked her, merely as a necessary formality, to be his wife With the ethereal mildness of the season, but firmness of a stalwart's grip on a fat office, the widow declined to give him either her plump hand or withered heart In vain the astonished widower begged her to reconsider her resolution With an eloquence raised to forty-horse power by an occasional glance at the evidence of wealth around him, he implored her to remember her tacit agreement to marry him at the end of the year With entire forgetfulness of Jacob and young Rachel he spoke of the number of days, each of which seemed like a year he had waited in accordance with her suggestion All, all was vain The widow positively refused to marry him and what was worse and this is the point upon which the interest chiefly centers, as positively refused to tell him why she would not. Stung to the quick with a just sense of female perverseness, the widower hastened to his lawyer and directed him to bring suit against the widow for breach of promise of marriage, laying the damages at $20,000 "Not" said he, "that I want the money, I will throw it in her face if I win the case, but I propose to make her give me her reasons for refusing me, that is all the satisfaction I ask, and that I will have" The lawyer called upon the widow and agreed to drop the suit if she would only give his client the desired information, but her only answer was "he had better not make me state my reasons" The lawyer is pressing the suit but says that he has no doubt it will be settled before it progresses far by the marriage of the parties We trust not It is seldom that a case of such stupendous and far reaching consequences comes up before our courts, and we want to see the legal principles involved in it settled for all time If a woman can not only refuse to marry a man, but even refuse to give her reasons for refusing, then indeed are the boasted rights of men such only in name,

Like dead sea fruits that tempt the eye
But turn to ashes on the lips

Let the men everywhere chip in to raise a fund to enable this outraged widower to carry his case, if necessary, to the highest tribunal in the land, and if that august body decides against him, we can at least bow with decent reverence to the decision that man has no rights that woman is bound to respect

Robert P Porter, one of the members of the newly appointed tariff commission, has written a letter to the Chicago Inter Ocean, in which he shows in a very interesting series of tables, the great progress that has been made in the western states and cities of America in population, trade and manufactures, particularly during the third quarter of the present century The increase in the population of the cities of the west since 1860 has been simply wonderful For instance, in Ohio it has been 1,34 per cent., in Indiana, 180 per cent., Illinois, 338 per cent., Michigan, 107 per cent., Iowa, 183 per cent., Wisconsin, 146 per cent, Minnesota, 584 per cent., Missouri, 154 per cent., Kansas, 347 per cent., and in Nebraska 2,318 per cent. The grain trade of ten of the great cities of the west aggregates 380,000,000 bushels, Chicago leading off with 125,000,000, Milwaukee following with 30,000,000. In a single western state 5,000,000 hogs were packed The growth of industries in the ten states named shows an astonishing increase The number of establishments having increased in the past thirty years nearly 100,000, the number of hands employed, 650,000, the capital employed, nearly $800,000,000, the value of the products, over $1,6"0,000,000

The above is a deserved tribute to the able and upright judge of this judicial district. If there were more judges like him in Colorado we would not have to call so frequently upon Judge Lynch Judge Helm would fill a position on the supreme bench with credit to himself and honor and usefulness to the state.

LITERARY

The Century for July bears for its frontispiece a likeness of Ralph Waldo Emerson—an excellent although somewhat flattered likeness. There is a look of clearness and peace about the face which was not in earlier days its characteristic, for such stout thinking as Emerson's cannot be done with an always smiling countenance, and the face is one which age has ennobled, It is supplemented by a sketch entitled "Emerson's Personality," by Emma Lazarus, which, brief, loving and well expressed, gives a clear idea of the best of Emerson, which is what he was, even more than what he did

A companion piece to this is a sketch of Thoreau, by John Burroughs, with a portrait. Thoreau seems to be a sort of mystery, in whom many people seem to believe, and about whom they occasionally write, but whose works, although not rare or inaccessible, are not often found or read He seems to be a gentle hermit, loving the woods supremely, yet a reader, writer and thinker of no common strength, and although known to but few, winning their full regard Add to these traits a perfect sympathy with nature in all her moods, and we have a man of whom it is always interesting to read or write, and yet one whom we might utterly fail to understand or admire if we should chance to meet him

A group of articles upon "Charity Reform," of which two are found in the Topics of the Time, are well-worth reading and pondering by all who, recognizing that the less than instantaneous photograph of the various motions of a horse running for example—after showing that all our preconceived and artistic ideas of horses are wrong and impossible and yet graciously concedes that after all we are conventional, vision intellect and all, and neither vision nor mind are quite enough to follow these movements any more than those of a buzz saw or a wheel in motion, whose spokes blend together In short we cannot see motion, but position, which instantly changes Although we have had so much to do with building railroads that we have failed to follow up the prestige of the yacht America, we find the greatest interest in following her fortunes, and the old exultation fills our hearts again when we read of her victory (not her winning) at Cowes, in that famous race The great west receives its full share of attention in four articles, "Among the Thlinkets in Alaska," the Bee Pastures of California, both illustrated, a Colorado Cavern, by Ernest Ingersoll, a local attraction of our own by the by, and a story by Joaquin Miller, "Danming the the Sacramento

Among the few brief poems, (alas, for the departed singers!) are two After the Rain, by Miss Annan, which is especially graceful, and "Punishment," evidently suggested by Dante but written in the vein of Hawthorne, or of Albert Durer

Bric a brac is good but might be better Let us hear again from the author of the "Yearn for the Romantic."

Hamlet in Other Languages.

The Nineteenth Century

In his version of "Hamlet" in 1769, Ducis was afraid to show the ghost of buried Denmark actually upon the stage. He showed, instead, Hamlet rushing on, full of a dream in which he has seen his father recount the story of his death Even this touch of the supernatural waked the wrath of Voltaire, who wrote of it, "Les ombres vont devenir a la mode—nous allons tomber dans l'outre et le gigantesque Adieu les sentiments du cœur" Yet there can be little doubt that it was this timid attempt on the part of Ducis which emboldened Voltaire himself to employ supernatural machinery for stage purposes In Ducis's version, the scene of the play within a play is feebly enough replaced by a narrative of the King of England's murder told by Hamlet to Claudius in order to discover if his dreams and suspicions point to the truth or no Either in consequence of the poverty of this device, or from a natural hardness of heart, Claudius exhibits no kind of emotion at Hamlet's recital. Then Hamlet is reduced to extorting a confession from the queen by suddenly throwing his father's funeral urn into her hands. After this there is a combat between Hamlet's followers and the king's, which leads to the death of Claudius and the installation of Hamlet on the throne. The play ends with the queen killing herself in a fit of remorse, and with Hamlet making a very proper and elegant speech, which concludes with

Mes malheurs sont combles—mais—ma vertu me reste.

Ducis's rearrangement of the plot is not much more interesting than is the tag which he judiciously provided for Hamlet. The marriage of Gertrude with King Hamlet is, according to Ducis, a merely political arrangement. The man whom Gertrude really loves is Claudius, who is not Hamlet's brother, but is first prince of the blood The queen is happy enough in her marriage for some time, but when she again falls in with Claudius her old love revives. Claudius, who is by this time a widower with one daughter, Ophelia, is by no means loth to requite her love, and then comes about the murder of King Hamlet Gertrude, however, attempts at the last moment, when it is too late, to prevent the murder, and the inevitable confidant of the French classical drama is later on dragged in to hear her confession In spite of the gross defects of Ducis's version, Talma so grasped the spirit of the play, that in his rushing on the stage to tell Norceste of the dream in which his father had appeared to him, nothing, according to competent witnesses, was lost of the awe and terror which naturally belong to the true Hamlet's meeting with the ghost. The Italian acting versions of the play are familiar enough from Signor Salvini's and Signor Rossi's performances Both versions are in many respects curiously defaced The German acting version is closer than any other modern one to the original text.

Former Brutality

Major Griffiths, in the Fortnightly Review

"There was every element of callous brutality in the manner of inflicting the extreme penalty of the law From the time of sentence to the last dread moment the convict was exhibited as a show, or held up to public contempt and execration Heartless creatures flocked to the jail chapel to curiously examine the aspect of condemned malefactors on the Sunday the jail sermon was preached Those men who had but a short time to live mingled freely with their fellow prisoners, recklessly carousing, and often making a boast that they laughed to scorn and rejected the well meant ministrations of the ordinary. The actual ceremony was to the last degree cold-blooded and wanting in all the solemn attributes befitting the awful scene. The doomed was carried in an open cart to Tyburn or other appointed place, the the halter already encircles his neck, the coffin was at his feet, by his side the chaplain or some devoted amateur philanthropist and preacher like Silas Told, striving earnestly to improve the occasion. For the mob it was a high day and a holiday; they lined the route taken by the ghastly procession, encouraging or flouting the convict according as he happened to be a popular hero or unknown to criminal fame In the first case they cheered him to the echo offered him bouquets of flowers, or pressed him to drink deep from St Giles's Bowl, in the latter they pelted him with filth and overwhelmed him with abuse The most scandalous scenes occurred on the gallows The haughman often quarreled with his victim over the garments, which the former looked upon as a lawful perquisite, and which the latter was disposed to distribute among his friends, now and again the rope broke, or the drop was insufficient and Jack Ketch had to add his weight to the hanging body to assist strangulation Occasionally there was a personal conflict, and the hangman was obliged to do his office by sheer force. The convicts were permitted to make dying speeches, and these orations were elaborated and discussed in Newgate weeks before the great day, while down in the yelling crowd beneath the gallows spurious versions were hawked about and rapidly sold It was a distinct gain to the decency and good order of metropolis when Tyburn and other distinct points ceased to be the places of execution, and hangings were exclusively carried out in front of Newgate, just over the debtors' door But some of the worst features of the old system survived There was still the melodramatic sermon, in the chapel hung with black, before a large congregation collected simply to stare at the convicts squeezed into one pew, who in their turn stared with mixed feelings at the coffin on the table just before their eyes There was still the same tumultuous gathering to view the last act in the tragedy, the same bloodthirsty mob swaying to and fro before the gates, the same blue-blooded spectators, George Selwyn or my Lord Tom Noddy, who breakfasted in state with the jailer, and so got a box seat or rented a window opposite at an exorbitant rate. The populace were like degenerate Romans in the amphitheatre waiting for the butchers to begin They fought and struggled desperately for front places, people fell and were trampled to death, hoarse roars came from thousands of brazen throats, which swelled into a terrible chorus as the black figures of the performers on the gallows stood out against the sky "Hats off!" "Down in front!" These cries echoed and re-echoed in increasing volume, and all at once abruptly came to an end - the bolt was drawn, the drop had fallen, and the miserable wretch had gone to his long home.

No Nomination.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., June 24.—The republican state convention of the seventeenth congressional district, after three hundred and seventy-six ballots, adjourned without making a nomination. At the close Updegraff stood 76, Taylor, 41; Hollingsworth, 15. A delegate introduced a resolution charging Updegraff with bribery, and called for a committee of investigation. It was unanimously adopted. Before the committee ex-Congressman Danford testified that Jones, of Noble county, a Taylor delegate, told him he had received money from Updegraff's representative, and would vote for him. Other witnesses had heard Jones make the same statements, but he denied under oath having made such statement or having been offered money by anybody. The committee exonerated Updegraff from the charge, and from any suspicion. The adjournment of the convention renders a new convention necessary.

The democrats of Minnesota have sustained an irreparable loss by the complete wrecking of a gravel train near Atwater.

Guiteau's friends say he will never repent this side of the grave. Wait until Miles curls his tail about his body seven times. He'll repent then.

The European conference has been called to meet at Constantinople. This greatly pleases the porte as he will not be required to remain long away from his harem.

The Leadville Chronicle says that Don Cameron proposes to adopt the crushing policy toward the Pennsylvania independents. Well, if it results as Samson's crushing policy did the independents will be satisfied.

Since Judge Wylie ruled out the other day certain important testimony against the star route conspirators the stalwart papers have bristled up considerably and begin to talk of "persecution," "malicious prosecution," etc.

Mayor Robbins has issued a notice requesting all persons to stop using the pipe water for irrigating purposes. The draft made upon our water system for legitimate purposes has so far depleted the supply in the reservoir as to make it essential that the notice should be complied with as a precaution against fire.

Gulteau says he is ready and willing to be hung, but thinks the American people can hardly afford to see him go to the gallows. Well, times are hard, and the country not very prosperous just now, but the people generally think that they can indulge in that luxury, and economize in some other directions.

Colorado towns generally are just now a little dull. This is largely owing to the backwardness of the season, both here and in the east. Warm weather has now set in and we may reasonably expect an increase of travel and a consequent increase of summer business. We have advices from several mining districts in the state which indicate remarkably rich discoveries, which will undoubtedly bring about quite a mining excitement.

General Rosecrans was renominated on Saturday by acclamation for congress by the democrats of the first district in California. He is just the pill to represent the men who voted for the anti-Chinese platform last week. We know something of Rosecrans and can say without hesitation that he is no better balanced than Gulteau. He has failed in everything he ever undertook, and is a humbug of the first water. He will probably be elected unless he has the devil for a competitor.

The bank bill, as it passed the senate, contains two provisions of importance to the silver interests of the country. One is that silver certificates, when held by any national bank, shall be counted as part of its lawful reserve. Another is that no banking association shall be a member of any clearing-house in which such certificates shall not be receivable in the settlement of clearing-house balances. Heretofore, neither silver dollars nor silver certificates have been received by the New York clearing-house.

Criticism may hurt the republican party but it can never hurt republican principle. The greatest drawback to republican principle is the party lash.—[Inter-Ocean.

Just so. The republican party was organized to do away with the lash. Free republicans will submit to no "boss," and when an attempt is made to drive them they are apt to become stubborn. "Hush," said Paddy, when asked where he was driving his hogs, "I'm drivin' 'em to Cork but am tryin' to make 'em belave they are goin' to Limerick."

The New York Herald gives the views, as expressed to a number of its correspondents, of several members of the tariff commission upon the subject which they were appointed to consider. Although the members were very reticent, it was learned that Mr. Underwood was in favor of raising a revenue to defray the expenses of the government, and paying off the national debt in a reasonable length of time, by a duty on imports. He favors a low duty on articles of common use, high duties on luxuries, and no duty on articles which we neither produce nor manufacture. Mr. Underwood stated in general terms that his views of a tariff were to be found in the whig platform of 1842, in Polk's letter to Kane in 1844, and in Polk's inaugural address in 1845. He further expressed himself in favor of abolishing the internal revenue tax on tobacco, and against levying a tax on any of the industries of the country. He was also opposed to the present tax on whisky and concluded by saying "In short, I favor a tariff rather than the present system of internal revenue."

Henry W. Oliver declined to express his views further than to say that he "should follow closely the act under which they were appointed." We know that Mr. Oliver is a very high tariff man and is in favor of largely doing away with internal taxation.

Robert P. Porter expressed his views at length, had much to say about "statistics," "circumstances of the case," "necessities of the consumer," etc. We are satisfied that he knows very little about tariff and taxes. When a man scratches his head, looks wise, and says "that a great deal can be said upon both sides of the question," it is a pretty sure sign that he can't say much on either.

Alexander B. Bolbeler seemed to think that the third section of the act establishing the commission expressed his ideas of the "scope of its inquiries." He thought the tariff should be arranged as to raise sufficient revenue for the government, economically administered, and at the same time, discriminate in favor of all American interests."

J. M. Garland replied to the reporter's inquiry: "Having been so recently confirmed I do not feel competent to properly answer your request for my views of the proper scope of labor of the tariff commission." Which strikes us as a singular answer.

John L. Hayes, chairman of the commission, declines to talk until he receives his appointment formally from the government. W. H. McMahon also declined to express his opinion until notified of his official appointment.

PERSONAL.

Don Cameron seems to be as happy as a European in Egypt.

John Bright will complete his twenty fifth year of parliamentary service this summer.

Several West Pointers refuse to admit that their waltzing days are over at sixty-two.

Mme. Nilsson proposes to fix her residence somewhere near London. Though her fortune is much reduced, she still has a competence.

Germany and Russia are both testing improvements in flying machines for use in war or otherwise. This news will gladden many a lonely crank.

A woman in Laurenceville, Quebec, seventy years old, recently gave birth to a child, who bids fair to live to comfort its parents in their "declining years."

Contrary to custom, no tickets will be issued this year for the Independence day exercises at the Boston theatre. The entire house is to be opened to the public.

The grave of Emerson at Concord is always covered with fresh flowers. This is done by the young people of the town, who make regular details for the purpose.

Attorney-general Brewster will probably go to Rome this summer with his family, to visit his sister, who resides there, and is a well-known newspaper correspondent.

A literary paper in Berlin says of Longfellow: "His poetry . . . is the tender blossom of universal humane education. It resembles a walk in the open air on a Sunday morning."

"Hazing having been frowned upon as a cowardly amusement, another of the Freshmen's occupations has been invaded. A kind of glass has been invented for street lamps from which a stone bounds harmlessly.

"Sunnyside," the old home of Washington Irving, just below Tarrytown, looks more quaint and picturesque every year. Visitors are courteously permitted to enter the grounds by the late author's relatives who reside at Sunnyside.

The recent honors paid to the author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" recall what George Sand wrote to her about that book thirty years ago: "Honor and respect to you, Mrs. Stowe. One of these days your reward, which is already noted in the archives of heaven, will also be recognized in this world."

The sale is progressing in New York this week, of the famous collection of coins on which the late Mr. Thos. I. Bushnell lavished his wealth and leisure hours during thirty years. One of the coins is the "Good Samaritan" shilling, believed to be the only one ever struck, the piece showing that the die was cracked. It bears the legend "Massathvsets in New England, ano, 1652, XII." Mr. Bushnell valued it at over $1,000.

Cremation in Europe.

From the Pall Mall Gazette.

The cremation of Garibadi, which is to be carried out in accordance with his last will and testament, will tend to revive public interest in a controversy of which little has been heard for some time. At present the practice is not popular; for the most of us it not even possible. Even at Milan the number of cremations does not exceed 100 per annum. The report of M. George Martin on "the Proposition Cadet," submitted to the municipal council of Paris, contains the latest and most trustworthy information on the subject of cremation. M. Martin agrees with M. Cadet that cremation in a short time will be regarded as the only possible solution of a problem which in great cities is ever increasing in urgency; but he contents himself with proposing that for the present cremation should be rendered optional. The crematory, however, is as yet but in an early stage of development. Under the stimulus of competition it is probable a much nearer approach to perfection may be made, than has yet been attained. The regenerative furnace of M. Siemens at Dresden only cost £250 and is one of the best yet invented. Combustion is effected by heated air, and the process is very rapid. The Brunetti crematory is complicated and slow. It takes four hours to consume a body, and necessitates a consumption of a hundred-weight of wood. The most ghastly of all the apparatus of cremation is the Koburo, which is devised for use on the field of battle. In this dreadful machine as many as 12 bodies can be burned at a time, the operation lasting from an hour to an hour and a half. A dozen Koburos working day and night could dispose of 2,500 corpses in 24 hours. Thirty years ago it was proposed to dispose of bodies by passing them into gas retorts, and since then many inventors have sought to use gas as the agent for reducing them to their elements. The apparatus of MM. Polliea and Clericetti, in which many cremations have taken place, is one of those in which gas is used, much on the principle of the ordinary gas oven. The process is complete in an hour and a half, and the charge is 20f. On an altogether different principle is the crematory of Professor Paolo Gorini, of Lodi. He professes to be able completely to destroy a human body in 20 minutes, at a cost of 8f., by immersing it in a chemical solution heated to a high temperature. The composition of this solution he keeps a strict secret, but chromic acid is believed to be one of its chief ingredients. The best known crematory in Europe is that erected by M. Keller in the cemetery at Milan. In this "monumental crematory" two bodies can be consumed at a time without producing any odor. The process, which is completed in an hour, can be watched through small glazed openings, and at the close the survivors can carry home with them four or five litres of fine ashes, weighing about sixty ounces. The cost varies from 15f. to 75f.

THE FALDETTA.

The Fascinating Garment Worn by Maltese Beauties.

Charles Dudley Warner in Hartford Courant.

First place to the dames. On first sight of the women of Malta, gliding about the streets in black, you think they have thrown their skirts over their heads. But they have not. The faldetta is a combination of hood and cape. Take a black silk apron; gather it close at the top with several runnings and put a whalebone through one side at the edge, so as to form a hood. This sort of hood is then thrown over the head, the "gathers" coming at one side, drawn so closely that it makes a curve, and the apron falling obliquely across the back. It can be drawn across the face so as to conceal everything except the eyes. And the large eyes of soft brown are the last things you or the women would wish to conceal. The costume is a remnant of the Saracenic days, and is one of the many signs of Moorish descent.

This is a very clumsy description of a most fascinating garment. It gives a piquant interest even to an ugly woman—and providence for our but it adds a charm to a pretty woman that is quite bewildering. Mind, this is not my opinion that I venture to give, but that of European ladies whom I have consulted. Perhaps I might not have noticed them otherwise.

All the Maltese ladies, as well as the common people, wear the faldetta to church, though on other occasions European hats are gaining ground with the higher classes. I am speaking at length of this costume, because groups of these figures in the street or thronging the churches are the features of the town. The faldetta is always worn with a black skirt, but some bright color is often worn about the neck, or for the bodice, together with heavy gold neck-laces, and the glimpse of this half-hidden warmth of color that the faldetta permits in contrast with the prevailing blacks, is very effective. It is perhaps the ever invented by the contradictory nature of the sex. I have given much reflection (while we are waiting here for a steamer to Gibraltar) to the reason of its peculiar charm, and I think it lies in this, that it gives to its wearer the appearance of a demure nun and a dangerous adventuress. How much the large, soft brown eyes and the clear, creamy Moorish complexion have to do with it is a scientific question. When one of the knights of Malta saw one of these ladies of oriental suggestion glide out of the church from her devotion, and permit the faldetta, as she passed him at the church door, to disclose one flash of her entreating eyes, if he did not follow her at least with his own eyes, he was not the gallant combination of priest and soldier that I have supposed him to be. But I am getting beyond my depth. What I wish to say is that if the sex wished to look both devout and fascinating, the faldetta is the best invention of their genius. I am told, however, that it is not a comfortable garment in a warm climate, and that the wearing of it tends to produce baldness. And, when we get to a bald woman it is time to change the subject.

Too Much Early Work.

Professor Owen.

All the nutritive functions and actions of growth proceed more vigorously and rapidly in childhood and youth than in mature life, not merely as regards the solids and ordinary fluids, but also in the production of those imponderable and interchangeable forces which have sometimes been personified as nervous fluid and muscular force. Using the latter term to amplify my meaning, the excess of nervous force is in the child most naturally and healthily reduced by its conversion into muscular force, and at very short intervals during the active or waking period of life the child instinctively uses its muscles and relieves the brain and nerves of their accumulated force, which passes, by the intermediate contraction of the muscular fibre, into ordinary forces of motion, exemplified by the child's own amusements and by those of some object or other which has attracted its attention. The tissues of the growing organs, brain and muscles are at this period of life too soft to bear a long continuance of their proper actions; their fibres have not attained their mature tone and firmness. This is more especially the case with the brain fibre. The direct action of the brain, as in the mental application to learning, soon tires; if it be too long continued the tissues are unhealthily affected; the due progress or growth, which should have resulted in a fibre fit for good and continuous labor at maturity, is interfered with; the child as an intellectual instrument is to that extent spoiled by an error in the process by which that instrument was sought to be improved. The same effect on the muscular system is exemplified in the racers that are now trained to 2½ or 3½ years old for the grand prizes at Doncaster and Epsom. The winner of the Derby never becomes an Eclipse or Flying Childers, because the muscular system has been overwrought two or three years before it could have arrived at full development, which development is stopped by the premature over-exertion. If the brain be not stimulated to work, but is allowed to rest, and if at the same time the muscles be forbidden to act, there then arises, if this restraint be too prolonged, an overcharged state of the nervous system. It is such a state as we see exemplified in the caged quadruped of active habits, then it seeks to relieve it by converting the nervous into the muscular force to the extent permitted by its prison, either executing a succession of bounds against the prison bars, like the agile leopard, or stalking, like the lion, sullenly to and fro. If the active child be too long prevented from gratifying the instinctive impulse to put in motion its limbs or body, the nervous system becomes overcharged, and the relief may at last be got by violent emotions or acts, called "passion" or "naughtiness," ending in the fit of crying and flood-of-tears.

The Seven Lakes Hotel is Now Open.

It is the highest hotel of the kind in the world, and in the highest forest.

The principal lake is eighty feet deep and one mile in diameter; is the highest in the world, being 11,432 feet above tide water.—(Report of the U. S. Signal Service.

It has the highest sail boats in the world.

The road via Cheyenne canon and Beaver park to Pike's Peak, about 13,000 feet, is the highest carriage road in the world, and the volcanic crater, within which are the hotel and lakes, is the highest and largest in the world. It does not militate against the crater that it has but one opening."—[Chancellor of the Kansas State University.

Professor Spring, says: "The scenery is extraordinary; sublime, beyond description."

Said the pyrotechnist who made the fire works for the great Masonic celebration in Chicago: "I never felt so near the Great White Throne as when beholding those stupendous remains of God Almighty's fire works."

Rev. H. C. Crane says: "Along the Cheyenne road and at the lakes, the views are glorious. By the old lake-bed, over 13,000 feet in the air, I found many precious crystals. I have never felt so happy since my marriage day."

Rev. Mrs. Crane: "Affable, and heaven too."

Bierstadt, the Rocky Mountain artist: "I never grow weary looking at it. It changes every hour. Cheyenne mountain, over the very crest of which runs the road of the lakes and Pike's Peak, is the only mountain in the world which rises without a base. From the prairie it boldly springs up 14,000 feet."

Various journals, notably the Atlantic Monthly, and "H. H." speak kindly of the house, lake and road.

"O, for some kind friend to kick me up another hill," said Mark Twain, before the road was made.

The water, or highly developed air, ozone (progressed oxygen), or both, cures many disorders. Exhaustion, nervousness, and every symptom of paralysis, at once disappear. So with many lung and heart troubles.

TUESDAY, JUNE 27, 1882.

A peculiar instance of animal suicide happened in this city on Saturday the first of the kind that has ever occurred within our recollection. The proprietors of Messrs Von Lesmar & Co.'s Pike's Peak museum, will remember the little black monkey called "General Grant" that has been one of the principal attractions at the museum since it was opened. During the entire day on Saturday Otto, the proprietor noticed that "General Grant" was very sullen, sneaking away on the corner of his perch and manifesting but little interest in what was going on about. He was at times cross and snubbing and would snarl at the children who approached close to him. On Saturday night just before retiring, Otto, as was frequently his custom, unchained the monkey and allowed him the freedom of the room. About midnight Otto was awakened by a heavy fall in the room adjoining the one he was sleeping in, and upon going to ascertain what had caused it he found the monkey—General Grant, lying on the floor with his throat cut from ear to ear. It appears that he had climbed on a shelf on which was lying a sharp knife used for skinning animals, with which he had cut his throat. No cause can be attributed for the deed unless it was the discovery on the shelf of two skins of other monkeys.

OUT WEST

Business at Leadville is said to be very dull at present.

General Cameron has received his watch stolen at Pueblo two weeks ago.

Ashcroft expects to have 5,000 miners in camp by January with sixty days.

Gunnison county is the only one in the state without a gubernatorial candidate.

Incendiaries are getting in their work in that portion of Denver called the flats.

The ice supply at Pueblo is already exhausted. It is a wonder it held out so long.

The Leadville postoffice has been made of the third-class with a postmasters salary of $1,400.

The Pioneer is a neat and newsy weekly paper published at Animas, San Juan county, has made its appearance.

Longmont has a ball club called the Ute, that pays to play a game with either the Denver Browns or Colorado Springs Reds.

A miner while shoveling snow on Torry mountain slipped and slid 1,000 feet down the mountain side. Miraculous to say he still survives, but his pantaloons were slightly discomposed.

Trustee's Sale.

Whereas I. Hiram S. Rich, treasurer of El Paso county, Colorado, by virtue of the power of sale contained in that certain deed of trust executed and delivered to me by Loring B. Richardson, bearing date the first day of April, A. D. 1881, and duly recorded in the office of the county clerk and recorder of said county of El Paso, in book 21 of deeds, at page 301 of the records of said county, to secure the payment of a certain promissory note therein described, for the principal sum of $8,000, and to the end of Matthew Carter might not be injured or otherwise affected by reason of the extension of time of payment of said note, which extension was granted by the holder thereof to the said Loring B. Richardson, for the period of twenty-one months from the first day of April, A. D. 1881, and whereas default has been made in the payment of said note and the interest accruing thereon, and whereas the holder of said note has requested me to sell the premises described in said deed of trust to satisfy said note and interest, now, therefore, I, James H. Barlow, trustee, at the request of the legal holder of said note, do hereby give public notice that I shall on Thursday, the 20th day of July, A. D. 1882, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the east door of the court house in the said city of Colorado Springs in the county and state aforesaid, sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, all the premises in said deed of trust described, to wit:

Lots number one (1) and two (2) in Elizabeth F. Waite's subdivision of block number two hundred and forty-five (245) in addition one (1) of Colorado Springs in the county of El Paso and state of Colorado, together with all and singular the tenements, hereditaments, privileges and appurtenances thereunto belonging, and all rights, title, interest and equity of redemption of the said Loring B. Richardson, his heirs or assigns, therein.

There is no more pleasing or grand sight in Colorado and you miss a wonderful scene if you fail to see it.

There are large stalagmites and grand old stalactites with the most delicate and beautiful flowers. The sight of one room and grotto of the flower of alabaster is worth infinitely more than the expense and trouble of visiting the cave.

There are many rooms for you to visit, among which are Cascade, Canopy, Cathedral and Music Hall's Alabaster Grotto and the famous Bridal Chamber.

The air is pure and there is no water to injure or soil clothing. Wraps and lights furnished and attentive guides. Come and see us.

Miss Mary Martin and Masters Robert and Augustus Martin returned on Saturday night from a year's absence at school in Illinois.

Sam'l of Posen will probably be the next attraction at the opera house, but the company will not come until the second week in July.

As usual there were an exceedingly large number of excursionists in the city and at Manitou on Sunday from both Pueblo and Denver.

The Denver base ballists and their friends spent Sunday enjoying themselves at Manitou and returned to Denver on a special train Sunday night.

The Colorado Springs board of trade filed articles yesterday with County Clerk Eaton. They have already been filed with the secretary of state.

Mr. G. C. Brackett, of Lawrence, Kansas, secretary of the Kansas State Horticultural society, is sojourning for a short time in Colorado Springs.

The Colorado Springs and Manitou people are wondering why they are not given advantage of Sunday excursion rates to Denver and Pueblo.

Miss McCormick, of Chicago, who has been visiting friends in Colorado Springs for some time past, left for her home via Denver yesterday afternoon.

The J. M. Sigafus Hose company will send a team to the local tournament at Pueblo on the Fourth of July. They are now practicing on the wet art nightly.

People wishing to subscribe for or advertise in the new city directory should leave their orders immediately at the Republic office. It is nearly ready for press.

There will be a special meeting of the Hook and Ladder company at the usual place this evening. All members are requested to be present as business of importance will be transacted.

The first game of ball for the championship will take place on the Association grounds Saturday, July 1, 1882, at 2:30 p. m. General admission, 25 cents; grand stand, 25 cents.

We learned from a gentleman who came from Pueblo yesterday that it is so warm there that the business men close their offices and stores and sleep during the day and keep open nights. A nice place that to live and do business in. It could copper St. Louis and win every time.

Billy Curtiss, formerly a telegraph operator in the Western Union office in this city, took the first prize for fast and perfect sending at the national telegraph convention in New York last week. It is either the second or third time that he has taken the first prize at the national convention.

The address given by Miss L. M. Von Finkelstein on Syria, of which country she is a native, was listened to by a large audience at the Presbyterian church on Sunday night. She was dressed in the garb of an Arab woman. It was listened to with the closest attention throughout. It was regretted by many present that Miss Von Finkelstein was not permitted to illustrate how Syrian women veiled themselves when on the public streets.

Speaking of Saturday's ball game the Denver News says: "No matter how a game may result it is always a pleasure to play with the gentlemen who represent the Springs. They are courteous to themselves and opponents, mindful of the respect that is due both umpire and audience, and in reasonable good temper all round. The date of their visit to Denver is not yet fixed, but the friends of the game here should see that it is grandly successful when the date is arranged.

The impression seems to prevail that the worm that is now doing so much damage to gardens in this vicinity is the army worm, but from what we can learn is a small caterpillar of entirely different habits and appearance. It will be remembered that in April and May there were an extraordinarily large number of millers flying in the air, and it is presumed that the caterpillars that are now destroying the garden's come from the eggs deposited by these millers. So far the damage done has been confined to the low lands along the Monument and Fountain. Old-timers say that in 1871 the same worm caused considerable trouble to gardens in this locality, but in no instance did they leave the bottom lands. No one seems to know exactly what is the proper name of the worm. We noticed yesterday that on the west side of the Monument they had moved all the grass and weeds close to the ground.

At the regular meeting of South Mission Sunday school, held at Fourth Ward School house, June 25th, at 3 o'clock p. m. J. B. Hodge resigned the position of assistant superintendent. Mr. J. M. The school was unanimous in having a picnic on the Fourth of July, at Mr. Dorr's grove, south of the city, and near Colonel De La Vergne's. A meeting of officers and teachers will be held at Mrs. H. M. Stotts's, southwest of school house, to-night, to make final arrangements. The patrons are invited to be present.

An enthusiastic audience greeted Professor and Mrs. Price at the entertainment given last night at the M. E. church, which, from an artistic and literary standpoint was a complete success. Professor and Mrs. Price display real talent in their efforts. Mrs. Price has a voice of rare sweetness and compass and manifests culture. The ease with which she renders some of the most difficult musical compositions is charming. Those who failed to be present missed a rare treat; those who were there will be sure to make an effort to be present to-night. No one can afford to miss this opportunity of hearing them.

Mr. A. J. Childs, of the California art gallery, of Denver, opens an auction sale of pictures at the old Chicago store to-morrow. He has a fine collection of paintings, and extends a general invitation to the public to call and see them. They will be on exhibition during the day.

Mayor Robbins yesterday issued a notice ordering all persons to discontinue the use of hydrant water for irrigation. It is very necessary that the order should be complied with, as the reservoir is empty and some pressure is needed as protection against fire.

As will be seen in an advertisement in another column, the furniture and household goods belonging to Mr. Loring S. Richardson will be sold at private sale at his late residence, on East Pike's Peak avenue, beginning this afternoon at 1 o'clock.
